SAILOR TELLS STORY OF LEXINGTON LOSS

The experience of William A. Morrill in the sinking of the aircraft carrier, Lexington, will be of interest to our readers, especially as the young man is the grandson of Mrs. Nellie Seabury of West Bethel. The following account was published in the Orlando, Fla., Reporter Star:

Surviving a hell of bullets, shells, bombs and fire, William A. Morrill of the sunken aircraft carrier, Lexington, lives to tell a tale of harrowing experiences that make fictional literature look tame.

Morrill, the brother of Tech. Sgt. A. E. Morrill, instructor at the Fighter Command School Base tells the story in a letter to his brother and sister-in-law the pure drama of which attests to the heroism of American boys in red hot action.

First reported lost, Morrill's return from the dead was heralded by the letter to his brother.

Here is his vivid account of the battle of the Coral Sea and the tragic, dying moments of the great aircraft carrier, whose plunge beneath the waves almost carried Morrill to his death:

"I know that you want to hear all about it, and I want to tell you, but it's such a long story that I'm sure that I will leave out lots of things that you would like to hear about.

"We had been operating in that neck of the woods (the Coral Sea) for several months, and it seemed like every time the Japs started anything the Lex was right in the big middle of it. We had been in several minor scraps and made a few big raids on Jap bases in and around the Marshall and Gilbert Islands, and around the Solomon Islands and New Guinea.

On May 4, we found that the Japs were concentrating their forces, evidently for a big push on Australia. Early on the 4th we cornered nine ships (including five

A WEEK OF THE WAR

Rationing

The OPA said about eight million Eastern motorists have received basic permanent gasoline rationing coupon books. Congressmen, members of State and local legislatures and other Government officials will be eligible for "special rations" for use in legislative or official business, and bona fide political candidates may have extra rations for travel necessary to the prosecution of their candidacies, the Office said. Special rations will also be issued for travel to obtain medical service, to demonstrate cars or boats for sale, to transport equipment and personnel of scientific expeditions and to operate a vehicle in tests essential to the war effort.

The WPB granted OPA authority to require filling station operators to submit coupons or other evidence that rationing regulations are being complied with, when gasoline is delivered to their stations. The OPA said that local rationing boards may refuse to issue new tires to eligible motorists if an inspector's report shows the purchaser has abused his old tires. The "bonus" sugar stamp, number seven in War Ration Book No. 1, may be exchanged for two pounds of sugar until midnight Aug. 22.

The War Front

Recent Far Eastern events indicate "the turning point in air operations has been reached and the Japanese are now more on the defensive whereas the American air forces are on the offensive," U. S. Army Air Forces headquarters in China reported. U. S. submarines within two days sank or destroyed five Japanese destroyers in the Aleutians, the Navy said. The War Department said American troops are now stationed at Port Moresby, Allied base in New Guinea. The Department also announced that U. S. crews, manning American-made medium tanks, knocked out a number of German tanks in the Battle of Libya in mid-June without any losses of their own personnel. Gen. MacArthur reported more Allied raids on numerous enemy bases in the Southwest Pacific. The Navy announced the torpedoing by Axis submarines of 16 additional United Nations merchant vessels.

War Information

Director Elmer Davis of the Office of War Information issued OWI Regulation Number One, stating "The Federal Government will issue as promptly as possible all news and background information essential to a clear understanding of this Nation's war effort. . . . The impact of the war on all phases of American life will be reported. So which would give aid and comfort to the cooperative efforts of the United Nations. Only information which would give aid and comfort to the enemy will be withheld."

The Armed Forces

The Army Specialist Corps, with 100,000 applications for membership, will enlist more than 11,000 men during the rest of this year, the War Department said. WAAC Director Hobby reported two of the first eight WAAC companies will consist of Negro women, commanded by Negro women, who will attend the first WAAC Officer Candidate School. President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing $8,500 million in new naval warship construction with emphasis on aircraft carriers. The Marine Corps said it is now promoting competent noncommissioned officers in the field to meet needs for additional officers.

Mrs. Lawrence Lord is confined to her home by illness.

WATER COMPANY OFFICERS ELECTED MONDAY

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Bethel Water Co., which was held at the Legion Rooms Monday afternoon: President, Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven; vice-president, Thomas I. Brown; secretary and treasurer, Louis Van Den Kerckhoven; directors, E. F. Bisbee, T. I. Brown, Mrs. W. C. Chapman, Mrs. H. C. Rowe, Mrs. W. J. Upson.

ALTON C. WHEELER

Alton C. Wheeler died at his home in Auburn Wednesday after a long illness.

He was born in Bethel Dec. 29, 1877, the son of Pierce E. and Lucy Chapman Wheeler. He was a graduate of South Paris High School and Bates College. After graduation from college in 1899, he was principal of Mechanic Falls High School two years and sub-master of Woburn, Mass., High School a year. He then studied law in the office of James S. Wright at South Paris and was admitted to the bar in 1904.

He practiced law at South Paris until 1928 when he went to Auburn where he has since enjoyed a successful practice. He served in the Legislature in 1911 and 1913, and was a candidate for Congress on the "Bull Moose" ticket. He was one of the organizers of the Paris Trust Company, and served as a director and secretary. Since going to Auburn he has been president of the Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club, and the Maine Mutual Automobile Insurance Co.

Mr. Wheeler is survived by his wife, who was Miss Edith Hayes of Auburn; a daughter, Miriam, of Auburn; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at the Plummer & Merrill Co. funeral home, Auburn, at 1 p. m. Friday.

MRS. JAMES CROOKER

ON THE OFFENSIVE AMERICA!

Wars are won by attacking, not by sitting in a fort!

And today America is taking the offensive against the Axis with hard-fighting, non-stopable men and materials!

We're taking the offensive, too, against the enemy at home—the inflationary 6th column that blows prices sky high.

You can help in both fights by saving at least 10% of your money in U. S. War Bonds every pay day. Attack the Axis with your dollars today.

You can start with as little as a 10c War Stamp and you can get a $25.00 War Bond (maturity value) for only $18.75—at your local post office, or at our convenient sales agency.

SCHOOL DAYS

By DWIG

Lexington

Continued from Page One transports) anchored in the bay of the island of Tulagi in the Solomons, and two hours later they were on the bottom. We lost one plane.

Our scouts began to pick up patrol planes and small groups of Jap ships, but each time they got away before we could get bombers to them. And then on the morning of the 7th we ran into a hornet's nest. Our scouts posed of five carriers, 15 cruisers, and worlds of destroyers and transports.

"I haven't got time for the details, but before the day was over, we had sunk two carriers, three cruisers, and several transports.

We lost three planes, one from motor trouble. We didn't get a scratch.

"We didn't contact them during the night, although just about dark five Jap planes got their bearings wrong and joined our planes in the landing circle to come in for a landing. Well, after the signal officer had waved them off a couple of times for bad approaches we finally decided that their lights did not look like ours and their motors sounded different, so we opened up and sent them on about their business.

"At dawn our scouts picked up the rest of the Jap fleet. Evidently they saw us about the same time. At 9:30 A. M. we picked up 60 or 70 planes approaching and got all set for the fun. At 10:03 they hit and I do mean hit. There was another carrier with us and four cruisers and seven destroyers and not a single Jap plane made so much as a motion at any other ship in the force. They all came at the Lady Lex.

"The dive bombers and the torpedo planes hit at the same time. Right quick we felt the hits. The big girl jumped time after time as she took four torps in the port side and three or four big bombs. Even those that hit in the water nearby have a terrific concussion. I was way down below, and I thought she had been hit at least 20 times. We took a hell of a list to port and I thought she was going to roll over before we could get out.

"I was so scared I could hardly move. I didn't mind the scrap, because we were getting used to them but the thought of getting trapped down there where I couldn't fight back had me ready to run.

"Well, we finally put out the fire and moved the wounded and dead out of the way and got the ship counter-flooded and got some more ammunition up on deck for a return match.

"They didn't damage the engines much and we were able to take on our planes for fuel and rearm. We had sunk two more cruisers and damaged the other one, so that the army found him next day and finished him off.

"Then an explosion just seemed to lift the ship right out of the water. That high-octane aviation gasoline had leaked out of one of the voids and caught fire from some electric spark, and then all hell broke loose. The paint started burning on the bulkheads and overheads and ammunition started exploding. Even the incendiary (magnesium) bombs started going and throwing their white heat into the rest of the mess. About the only thing we had to fight the fire with was salt water, and you can imagine what good that did.

"We fought the fire all day long and I was so tired I could hardly hang on to a ladder to climb out. I was down there when one of the magazines blew up and if I hadn't had my gas mask and a flashlight, I never could have gotten out. Bud, always remember that, and treat your gas mask like one of the family, because if you ever need one, you need one right then and it had better work. And if you ever go aboard ship for transfer, take a flashlight with good batteries.

"We abandoned ship about 5 or 5:15 P. M. I was so tired I could hardly stand and how I ever stayed afloat for two and a half hours I'll never know. Remember I never could swim worth a darn anyway. I got picked up by the — at 7:25 P. M. I never got near a raft. I got off with a pair of dungaree pants.

"Just before I went over, I went back down to the band compartment and got the cigarette cases you gave me for Christmas in 1939. It's here on the table now. Kind of messed up, but still works the first time. I wouldn't take a million dollars for it. So I'll have to start saving junk again. There were so many little things that I was so fond of that went down with the ship—all the pictures that you had sent me and things like that. But those things don't really count because here I am, and didn't even get hurt, just scared the hell out of me.

Oven Meals

Summer's here, and I'm bringing up oven meals? Yes, but there's a method to my madness. Nutrition experts agree that hot, hearty meals are a "must" for our families the year around and I'd like to see us all get that healthy habit now. Oven meals are nutrition-wise, yet they keep us from dancing constant attendance in the kitchen.

Mrs. Kiene No special equipment or recipes are needed with these few general rules about preparing oven meals: Try to choose foods which require the same temperature and approximately the same length of time. Estimate the length of time to cook the meal by the weight of the meat. If meat requires longer cooking than other foods, place it in the oven first, then add vegetables and dessert at proper time. Roast meat in an uncovered pan, and don't add any water.

Cook vegetables in covered pans. (If they take about 30 minutes on the surface, allow 1 hour in the oven.) It's best to skip quick-cooking vegetables, such as peas, broccoli, asparagus and cabbage, in oven-cooked meals.

Foods cooked with a large amount of syrup on the bottom of the pan belong on the upper rack. Meat usually goes on the bottom, pastries and desserts on top. Vegetables may be in the center or on the bottom with the meat.

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

BY SUSAN THAYER

THE GIRL IN THE GREEN DRESS

The statue of Liberty has had a variety of visitors in the 60 years of her conspicuous life. People from all parts of the world have climbed these steep, narrow stairs to peer out of the little windows in her brow into the busy harbor below.

But never was a visitor more appropriate than the girl in the green dress who toiled up those stairs ahead of me a few days ago and had her picture taken later with the famous statue in the background.

She looked like a million other girls do this summer, with a green bow in her hair and pink enamel on her shapely nails. But when I talked with her I knew that the role she is playing in America's war effort makes her more significant than her gay appearance would indicate. For she is an inspector of parts in a machine gun factory in Detroit in New York for a week's vacation.

"To get away from the strain and the noise," she told me. "You've got to be on your toes all the time or you'll let something pass that isn't perfect. That means trouble after the gun is completed and costs a lot more time and money than it does when you find it before the job is done."

Then she talked about the plant where she works in the simple every-day language one woman uses to another, about the foreman who "had it in" for her and the manager who liked her; about the girls she worked with, about the cafeteria they didn't like and so the management closed it; about the clothes the girls wore and how much they cost; about weddings and romance, and her hope of taking an ocean trip some day. In fact, she was saving money for it right now!

"You like your work then?" I asked her.

"Love it!" she said her dark eyes shining. "It's interesting. It pays good money. Besides it makes me feel I'm a part of things today. I've got a brother in the Army and so the more good guns I help build the better I like it."

Then she turned philosophical—that frivolous looking little girl with the serious job. I've always wanted to visit the statue of Liberty, she said. "Now that I've done it, she seems more important to me than ever. They'd take her down, I suppose," she said bitterly. There was a firm set to her jaw as she concluded, "but I don't think they'd have a chance."

It's workers like this that management finds invaluable in the war of production which American industry is winning so magnificently!

LIQUOR CAUSES MORE
HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

For the week of June 29th to July 6th there was a total of 28 accidents reported to State Police Headquarters, a decrease of 3 accidents over the previous week. There was 1 fatal, 12 personal injury and 15 property damage accidents. 14 occurred in daylight and 14 after dark, 24 in rural and 4 in urban sections.

On wrong side of road, liquor involved, and did not have right of way were the greatest contributing factors for this week's accidents.

Several weeks ago it was predicted by safety experts that liquor would be more noticeable in our accident problem because of the fact that more people were working and making more money during the National Emergency. More and more our accident reports show that liquor has been involved and this situation is becoming more serious.

Do you consider yourself as good a driver with a couple of drinks as when you are sober? You may think you are but your opinion doesn't agree with the facts. The truth is, the driver who drinks is a more deadly menace than any of you realize. The motorist who is a real danger is the one who takes just a few drinks and then starts boasting about what a good motorist he is. Feeling exhilarated and pepped up he is tempted to press down a little harder on the accelerator, despite the fact that his reaction time has been retarded by his liquid refreshments. Even a small quantity of alcohol is sufficient to over-stimulate the brain and create a false confidence.

Drinking and driving should be separate activities. The person who drinks should leave the job of driving to someone else. Tests made in different parts of the country show that drinking before driving causes a person to lose that fine sense of critical judgement so necessary to meeting emergency situations wisely. Drinking drivers are liable to become reckless, take chances and travel too fast.

Under ordinary circumstances the average motorist will stop after being in accident. He knows that he should render all possible assistance so that the injured person might be spared aggravated injuries. But the same motorist, under the influence of liquor, may become a hit-and-run driver, the worst type of driver, for a person who will strike down a pedestrian and keep going is guilty of nothing short of a criminal act.

We would like to point out that an unfortunate factor in this whole problem of drinking and driving is this: drinking is so common a habit that many people are tempted to be lenient in their thinking of just punishments for those who drink and drive and those who try to walk home alone. A drunk pedestrian is a menace to himself for he is not alert to the dangers of traffic as he crosses the street or walks in the highway on his way home.

Constant education of the public as to the seriousness of driving while under the influence of liquor, combined with the strict enforcement of the laws governing the operation of motor vehicles while in this condition, will bring about a more decisive action against the persons who insist on jeopardizing their own safety in traffic as well as threatening the safety of others by mixing drinking with their driving and walking.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.

America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day, will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

The 10 POINT PLAN

TO HELP GIVE YOUR CAR

an extra year of youth

By T. S. BLAIR, well-known Automotive Engineer

1. THE ENGINE

The automobile engine is a sealed unit which neither requires nor permits major adjustments. It depends on motor oil to keep it in satisfactory condition. It is most important that the correct grade of lubricant be used. However, remember that crankcase oil usually becomes contaminated long before it wears out, and foreign elements (dirt, water, sludge, gasoline) are the real danger to the car owner's pocketbook. The oil must be free to lubricate, cool and seal. It cannot if it is adulterated.

FACTS

MISUSE OF THE CHOKE causes dilution of oil with gasoline. EXCESSIVE IDLING dilutes oil with water, especially in cold weather. DIRT ACTS AS AN ABRASIVE, damaging smooth surfaces inside motor. POOR OIL PRODUCES EXCESSIVE CARBON which in turn scores piston walls—distorts piston rings. EVERY ENGINE FORMS SLUDGE which, if allowed to remain reduces compression, affects valves, piston rings.

SERVICING

Have your motor oil checked every week by your petroleum dealer. He will show you when your oil needs changing. Follow his recommendations, concerning the type and grade of oil to use.

Don't throw good oil after bad by putting it in a dirty motor. Have your crankcase cleaned and flushed every time you change the oil. Use a good top cylinder lubricant to retard the formation of engine varnish. Different treatments are necessary for various conditions.

This is the first of a series of articles on the care of your car.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
DETERMINING CORRECT EXPOSURE

Correct exposures produce the finest snapshots. Use common sense and an exposure guide, and you'll always get good results.

AMONG the common mistakes in amateur photography are under and overexposure. That is due almost entirely to the fact that many snapshotters do not give correct exposure the careful consideration it deserves.

If you have been having exposure trouble just remember this: Correct exposure is principally a matter of good judgment, plus the proper use of available exposure instructions. There's nothing hard about that, and any photographer can apply the basic principles to his work in a few seconds.

For instance, take that matter of using good judgment. Don't try to take pictures in deep shade at the same shutter speed you used for snapshotting in the open sun. Open your lens aperture at least one, and possibly two, full stops. And when you take pictures in the sun on the beach, remember to use only half-normal snapshot exposure. The bright sun, and the high reflective quality of the white sand will result in bad overexposure if you're not careful.

Those points may seem rather obvious, but they are frequent mistakes that beginners make—and if you want to produce snapshots which are as good as our illustration you've got to hit correct exposure "on the nose" or come mighty close to it.

To help you master this problem, if your camera has a number of possible lens apertures and shutter speeds, you'll find one of the inexpensive pocket exposure guides a big help. Today those guides have been developed to a point where they are so simple to operate and so accurate that you can tell at a glance what the correct exposure is for almost any given situation. Some films have a general exposure chart included in the instruction sheet which comes with each roll or package of film, but if you do much picture making a pocket exposure guide and common sense are a team which guarantee the best results.

In The U. S. Service

For nearly a year we have offered a year's subscription to the CITIZEN without cost to any man or woman from this locality serving in the armed forces of the country. The response to this offer has far exceeded our hopes, and the newspaper has been much appreciated by the recipients as shown by the many notes of thanks and interest received from readers and friends or relatives who have submitted names and addresses. However, the call has been so great that it is necessary on account of increased expense to make a small charge for this service.

All free service subscriptions now in force will continue to one full year from the first issue mailed. Beginning July 10 we will send the CITIZEN to any person serving in the United States Army, Navy or Marine Corps for $1.00 a year. This rate will apply to all such subscriptions, regardless of the address, either new subscriptions or renewals of free service subscriptions. No subscriptions will be entered at this rate for less than one year, payable in advance.

We regret the necessity of making this charge, but believe that this half rate will meet the approval of both the donors and recipients as our former offer has during the past year.

450,000,000 Chinese Have Fought Aggression 5 Years

Biggest thorn in Japanese occupation forces have been some 800,000 guerrilla warriors, who have carried on a ceaseless war behind Jap lines.

Chungking, since becoming China's wartime capital, has been the worst bombed city in the world.

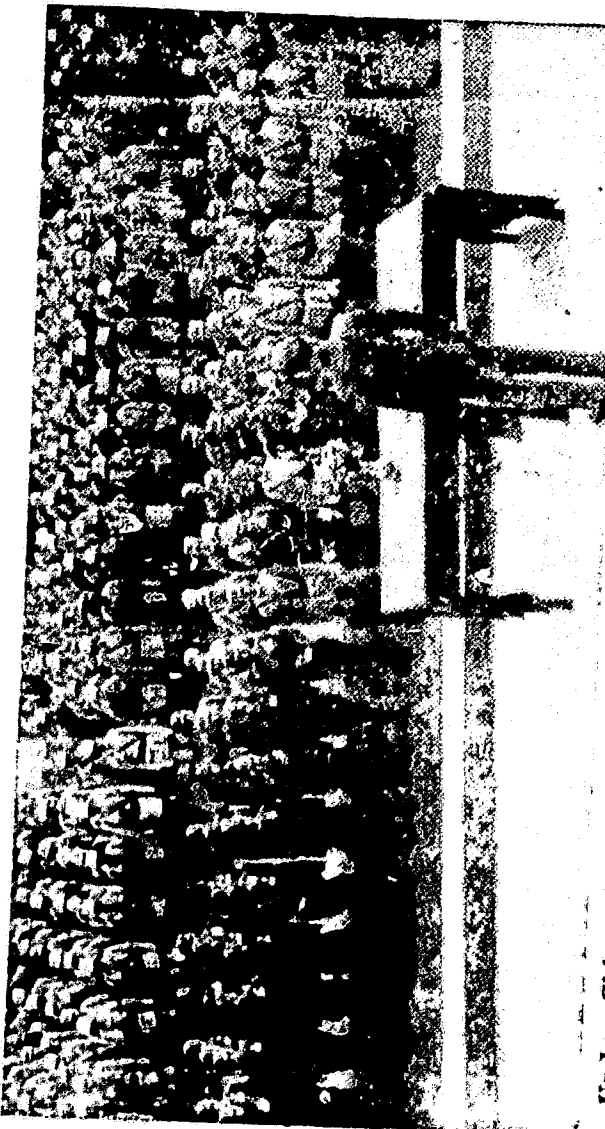

Flying Tigers, a lone example of what China can do if and when she can be relied on to do it.

CHINA ENTERS 6TH WAR YEAR

ON JULY 7, 1937, at Marco Polo Bridge, Japan struck the blow that started the "China Incident." On Dec. 7, 1941, at Pearl Harbor, Japan dropped the bombs that brought war to America. Sadly lacking in mechanized weapons, China has come up the long and hard way from fighting aggression single-handed—almost barehanded—to the position of valued ally among the United Nations. To her allies China has brought many things from her five years' experience with the powerful Japanese military machine. There is the sheer fighting ability proved in the countless battles all along the 2,500-mile front and behind it. There is the civilian morale that has stood the test of the worst bombings. And then, there is the manpower—ten million trained men, five million on armed soldiers, including 800,000 guerrillas and 600,000 regular troops operating in supposedly enemy-occupied areas.

China's value as a fighting ally is only equalled by the strategic importance of that country as a base for Allied air offensive against Japan proper. After Doolittle's raid on Tokyo the Japanese have launched a determined drive to seek out and destroy actual and potential Allied air bases in the Chinese provinces of Chekiang and Kiangsi. The current enemy offensives are also aimed at seizing some of China's strategic railways, a complete hold on which would enable Japan to have unbroken land communication all the way from the Siberian border to Singapore. By once again stalling the invaders at all cost, the Chinese are making it difficult for Japan to consolidate her gains in the southern Pacific or to strike at Soviet Russia in the north. Only with more bombers and pursuit planes from America, however, can our Chinese ally play her full role in the Allied offensive from Asia promised by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, United Nations Commander-in-Chief of the China theater of war.

Under Chiang Kai-shek, China's manpower was mobilized. Thousands of peasants, students and workers trained in the interior to become soldiers.

Often under-equipped, with no plane support, Chinese soldiers broke war rules, defeated Jap invaders three times at Changsha, the last time in January '42.

Japanese militarists introduced total war to the world two years before Hitler attacked Poland. Shanghai and its civilians became military objectives for the Mikado's bombers.

Farmers and refugees, driven from their land and occupations, moved south and west to continue the struggle.

Two million Chinese worked to open the Burma Road, vital supply route for U. S. materiel, which is now closed.

We Call It

Romance

IT'S JUST a can of soup. But during a long lifetime, the man who made it found some way to advertise it. At first, just a sign over his little soup kitchen, a few newspaper ads, a few billboards. But as the advertising grew, so did the business.

Now the business employs thousands of workers, helps to support tens of thousands of retail clerks and transportation men, and gives the housewife a better, cheaper soup than she could prepare at home.

Back of every heavily advertised article is a romantic story of this kind—the kind of romance that built America.

"BALLOON BOATS" CUT U.S. LOSSES FROM SEA CRASHES

Above, a two-man "balloon-boat" is carried from the water after tryout. Note gas cylinder in foreground. Below, R.A.F. fliers in gas-filled boat are hauled to safety.

Highly Compressible
Liquid Makes Boat
Out of Small Bag

Two engines dead . . . Oil tanks afloat . . . Losing altitude fast . . . Get ready for crash landing at sea! When U. S. fliers find themselves in a spot like this, they rush for their emergency life-raft, for bombers and fighters sink fast when they crash at sea.

That emergency life-raft looks like a rolled-up pup-tent while the plane is in flight, but the second a plane hits the water things happen to it. A quick twist of the wrist and it balloons up into a boat nearly 100 times its rolled-up size.

This life-saving miracle is due to the harnessing of a portion of the air we breathe—carbon dioxide. Compressed into 1/450th of its normal volume, this gas when released inflates the rubber boat in three to ten seconds. No other inflation method can approach it for speed and light weight.

Engineers of Walter Kidde and Company of New York discovered this clever inflation method which has saved the lives of nearly 400 R.A.F. fliers and many Americans, while compressing carbon dioxide for use in fire extinguishers and siphon bottle chargers.

Final adjustments on large boat are made by girl worker. Entire boat is inflated by the tiny bottle of carbon dioxide.
